Part 3: Translation

Translate the following passage into Urdu.

One of the things I enjoy most is listening to radio stations via the internet whilst I am working at my computer. Sometimes I miss programmes that I like because I am at a meeting or travelling. Luckily for me the BBC has come up with a brilliant and simple idea. It's called 'Listen Again'. You go to their website and click on the programme you want even if it was broadcast earlier in the week. This way you never have to miss your favourite programmes.

I listened to a very interesting programme on the radio yesterday. The presenter was talking to two travellers who had made a journey across the world's largest continent. Sam Manicom rode his motorbike from Indonesia to Germany, after first visiting Africa and Australia, in a trip that lasted eight years. Tim Cope took three years to ride from Mongolia to Hungary on horseback following the route taken by Genghis Khan and his armies in the 13th century.

How I love the radio – it lets me travel all over the world without leaving the comfort of my own home! [20]
